New Profs Bring Varied Talents

Mary Ellen Caldwell comes to the College of Law as the only female full professor on the faculty. She leaves Yale University's law school where she was a Research Associate and Lecturer in Law.

Miss Caldwell holds a B.A. from Northwestern College of Louisiana, an L.L.B. from Louisiana State, and an L.L.M. from Yale. She has written extensively and was associate editor of the Yale Quarterly publication Modern Uses of Logic in Law (Mull).

Her past subjects have been Law, Science and Policy; Constitutive Process of Authoritative Decision; and Introduction to the Legal System. Here she will teach Contracts and a seminar in legislation this quarter, and Bankruptcy, Contracts, and a seminar on Jurisprudence in the following quarters.

Professor Caldwell is admitted to the Louisiana State Bar Assn. and is a member of both the American Bar Association and the American Society of International Law. In the past she has done work in the area of case retrieval by electronic data processing for both Yale and the American Bar Association.

Miss Caldwell's background includes being an administrative assistant to Governor Earl Long of Louisiana from 1949 to 1952. She was a law clerk to U.S. Circuit Judge Wayne

OSU Students, Alums Are Active

ABA-ALSA Meet In Montreal

For the past several years the Ohio State Student Bar Association has demonstrated an increasing interest in the activities of the American Law Student Association. Two summers ago the SBA sent two delegates to the A.L.S.A. annual meeting held in Miami, Florida. This past summer three delegates represented Ohio State at the 1966 A.L.S.A. annual meeting in Montreal, Canada. The delegation was headed by Mike Finn, President of the O.S.U. Student Bar Association, and included Ray Bourhis and Jim Bradner as alternate delegates.

Since the A.L.S.A. annual meeting is held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the American Bar Association, the delegates to the A.L.S.A. meeting have contact with members of the bar from throughout the nation as well as with representatives of American student bar associations. The time and location of the A.L.S.A. annual meeting permits the 135 member law schools of A.L.S.A. to learn new techniques in student bar administration.

While in Montreal the delegates from Ohio State participated in sessions centering on student bar administration and meetings where the elections of the new A.L.S.A. officers were held. Jack Hederman of the St. John's University Law School will preside over A.L.S.A. this year. The new president follows the active presidency of Dick Schisler of the University of Cincinnati Law School. Past-President Schisler was instrumental in culminating A.L.S.A. efforts to make law student activities a Section of the American Bar Association.

The Ohio State delegation to the A.L.S.A. annual meeting was the prime mover in introducing and encouraging the passage of a resolution creating an A.L.S.A. subcommittee On World Peace Through Law and endorsing the work of the World Peace Through Law Center in Geneva, Switzerland. This new subcommittee will promote cooperation between the World Peace Through Law Center and the American law students as represented by the American Law Student Association.

Ray Bourhis of the Ohio State delegation spoke in behalf of the resolution at the A.L.S.A. Resolutions Committee hearings. A member of the O.S.U. College of Law student body has applied for the subcommittee chairmanship so the chairmanship may be at Ohio State during the next academic year.

At an informal gathering of the Ohio law schools with delegates in Montreal, the delegates from Cleveland-Marshall Law School and Akron

Law School proposed that law students in Ohio should be permitted to assist indigents in Ohio courts along the same lines that Michigan and Tennessee law students now do in their state courts. To initiate action toward this goal a discussion with the Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of Ohio was suggested. Then the group of Ohio delegates asked Mike Finn of Ohio State College of Law to coordinate this effort and determine the receptiveness among the Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of Ohio to this idea.

Mike Finn also served as a member of the A.L.S.A. Resolutions Committee during the A.L.S.A. annual meeting. This meeting, likewise, marked the time at which Jim Bradner of Ohio State retired as chairman of the A.L.S.A. Audio-Visual Committee. The active role taken by Ohio State is indicative of the interest that the O.S.U. Student Bar Association has developed in the organized national student bar. In fact, last spring at the Sixth Circuit A.L.S.A. Conference, where all the law schools in Ohio, Michigan, Tennessee,

Judge O'Neill Chosen President

Diamond Anniv. Campaign Starts

Isadore Topper, chairman of the National Council of the College of Law, recently announced the formation of a Diamond Anniversary National Campaign Committee.

The committee will be functioning under the presidency of Judge C. William O'Neill of the Supreme Court of Ohio and president-elect of the College of Law Alumni Assn. Judge O'Neill will take office as president at the Annual Assn. Reunion Dinner on November 4.

Mr. Topper announced the National Council's anniversary goal of $123,000 for short range needs of the College. This goal is to provide $63,000 for scholarships including 25 full tuition scholarships of $1500, 25 tuition scholarships of $534, and $12,250 for scholarships in lesser increments, $10,000 for a revolving loan fund, a supplement of $40,000 to the present $200,000 college endowment funds and $10,000 to initiate two named professorships.

The longer range anniversary campaign goals include an endowed chair, increased scholarships and loan funds, and five named professorships. The first local area campaign was initiated in Cleveland, Ohio in July. Rice Hershey, President of the Alumni Assn., met area leaders in the Summit-Medina county area campaign in August. The Franklin and Lucas county drives are being initiated as the BARRISTER goes to press. Plans are in the making for campaigns in Washington, D. C., San Francisco, New York, Chicago as well as ten other areas in Ohio.

The National Council reported that during the 1965-

66 year 121 of the 514 students enrolled in the College were assisted in the amount of $88,000. Gifts to the College contributed to this support by $21,000. During the same period endowments increased $37,000 and student activities and alumni sources including the BUCKEYE BARRISTER received $5,000 of support. Total gifts from alumni and friends for the period 1965-66 reached the high annual contribution mark of $65,000.

Program Is Planned

Law Wives To Hold Tea Sunday

The Fall Tea in honor of freshman wives will be held on Sunday, October 2, 1966 from 2 until 4 p.m. in room 3 of the Law School by the Ohio State Law Students' Wives' Association of which every wife of an OSU law student is a member. Mrs. Terry P. Pugh is Chairman of the event.

Guests will be greeted by a welcoming line composed of Mrs. William E. Armstrong, president; Mrs. David L. Day, first vice president; Mrs. Thomas R. Hillhouse, second vice president; Mrs. Kenneth A. Bravo, recording secretary; Mrs. James R. Burkhard, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Dennis M. Seaman, treasurer.

During the get-acquainted affair Mrs. Ivan C. Rutledge, wife of the Dean, and Mrs. Albert M. Kuhfeld, faculty advisor and wife of the Associate Dean, will give a few words of welcome. Mike Finn, president of the Student Bar Association, will conduct tours of the law school building.

An additional aid to orienting the new wives are the small-group coffees to be held in the homes of the officers in the evenings during the week of October 10-14.

Dean Ivan C. Rutledge will present the traditional welcome meeting on October 19, 1966 at 8 P.M. He is to give the wives an overview of the life which they and their husbands will be living for the next few years.

Enrollment Increases At Law School

Preliminary information from the College office indicates that the enrollment will be 525 as we start classes. Classwise the figures are: first year 210, second year 190, third year 125.

This represents the largest (on estimated current figures) enrollment that the College has ever had. The enrollment has been increasing steadily, in the academic years commencing 1963 through 1965 respectively there have been 370, 415, and 514 students. The trend is expected to continue, according to Dean Wharton.

The present senior class had 212 admitted in the freshman year, 186 of whom took exams in the third quarter of that year. The present second-year class started the freshman year with 285 students. Last year's graduating class of 103 was originally 177 in their entering freshman quarter. This year an attempt to curb the attrition rate was made by more selective admissions.

Editorials

The Big, New Year

Welcome! This week the College of Law starts its seventy-fifth year of classes. The College has grown from its humble beginnings as a protege of the Ohio State Supreme Court with classes taught intermittently to an independent College complete with its own building, library, and integrated program.

As we commence the academic year we can recall with pride the history of this school. The College's graduates have fanned to every corner of the globe and are active in their respective communities as counsellors, judges, professors, corporate executives, clergymen and legislators. This truly is the greatest law school in the state and ranks among the top law schools in the nation. We are blessed with a faculty not only skilled in their academic areas but possessing a wealth of experience from governmental and private practice and professional writing.

Throughout this year the BARRISTER will carry a series of articles recounting the history of our College and the great men and women affiliated with it.

Diamond Anniversary

A big thank you is in order for Rice Hershey, the members of the National Council, and alumni and friends who have contributed personally and financially during this past year to the college. Professorships, chairs, scholarships and loans are all necessary to the thriving academic spirit here at the College of Law.

We wish Judge O'Neill and his assistants the best of success for a good Diamond Anniversary campaign.

More Help Needed

As we go into our second year of hard type printing in this edition of the BARRISTER I, as editor, would like to thank those who make our publication possible.

The Deans and administrative assistants are major sources of information. The Alumni provide the major part of the funds. Certain individuals, however should be singled out by name because of their contributions in time. Jim Bradner, class of 1966, revived the BARRISTER three years ago and has served as editor, business manager, photographer, writer, and trouble shooter. Mrs. Pat Johnson of the College Office is always ready with Alumni information. For this issue Jim Reed and Paul Coleman cut their summers short in order to help publication.

We need new blood, however. Men and women of imagination and insight who want to do something besides have their noses in a hornbook are welcome to join us.

Code: A Witch-hunt?

Is the title "Honor Code" somewhat of a misnomer? Perhaps it is time for a thorough re-definition and re-evaluation of the Honor Code because of the rash of "violations" uncovered last year.

It would seem that a true Honor Code is a set of self-defined, self-imposed standards which an honorable man uses to guide his life. But today the "Honor Code" has degenerated into a mere statute compilation, an embodiment of rules prescribed by another and enforced by another. It appears to be a students' handbook of "Thou shall nots".

The basic idea behind a true Honor Code at a College of Law, we submit, is to instill mutual trust and confidence of the highest order into the daily lives of future members of the bar. Professional responsibility is the responsibility of each member of the bar consequently it should be a part of the legal instruction and life here. The code should be more than a rule which releases professors from policing their brooding students during examinations.

"welcome to the wonderful world of law study."

The Student Bar Association seeks to maintain confidence among the faculty, administration, and students by providing the code. In many years past, according to one alumnus, there was another type of "Honor Code" where it was optional on the student whether he wanted to be governed by the "Code" during examinations. The option was offered because many students felt that although they would not cheat, they did not want to bear the additional burden during exams of having to be alert for others who might be cheating. Our present code carries no option.

Our code has been adulterated in the past few years by students and faculty members announcing that, for example, throwing cigarette butts on the floor, collaboration on Moot Court briefs, . . . etc. is a violation. The proliferation of regulations without reason or authority has made the Honor Code, for those who would enforce it, a witch-hunt. And since we are all to enforce it, all of the time, on everyone — ourselves included — it can become confusing.

There are many units in the College that are perfectly capable of enforcing their own rules without resorting to tacking their rules formally to the Honor Code. The Library can utilize a fine system. The Moot Court Governing Board can withhold grades, require that additional work be done, or fail students it considers violating its rules. The administration can dismiss or reprimand students caught stealing property.

We think it is time for a purge of the Honor Code in order to place it in its proper place in the College community. Expunge the drivel; keep the meat of the matter; and start off the year on the right footing by publicizing the official purpose and content of the Honor Code to both the faculty and the student body.

The Code should be more of a pervading rule of conscience than a catalogue of statutes.

Honor Code Is Part Of Law School

By Jack C. Rubenstein
Chairman, Honor Council

As we begin the academic school year it is imperative for us, whether freshman or upper classman, to reread and familiarize ourselves with the Honor Code. The Honor Code sets the guidelines of the academic community under which we will live and compete for the next nine months.

There is no excuse for even one violation. Last year the Honor Council tried an unprecedented five cases, indicating a breakdown in understanding of the Honor Code. Many of these violations were caused by the sheer laxity and negligence of not familiarizing oneself with the Honor Code. To overcome this stumbling block, copies of the Honor Code are being made available to each student. Take the time to read it and understand its responsibilities.

The Honor Code is not an optional document, accepted by only those who agree with its obligations and philosophy. Rather it is part of the existing body of laws under which each student in the College must govern himself.

The preamble to the Honor Code reads:

"In the interest of furthering the adherence to the standards of conduct of both the legal profession and the academic community, and in the interest of promoting fairness and honesty in the conduct of students registered in the College of Law, this Honor Code has been adopted."

The Code has been adopted for our convenience to establish an atmosphere compatible to the personal integrity and obligations of the profession we are all preparing to enter. Familiarity with its principles and obligations should make its purposes more meaningful.

Ignorance of the Code is no excuse and cannot be considered as a defense by the Honor Council in deciding violations or recommending sanctions. A law student is held to the same standard of integrity as a lawyer, and it is with this in mind that we must approach our academic responsibility to our fellow students, to the Code and to the College of Law.

Freshmen, take a quick look at those sitting around you. The freshman class elections will be coming within the next six weeks. Consult the bulletin board for election rules.

International Law

Group Plans For Year

By December, 1966, the Ohio State International Law Society should be accepted as a member of the Assn. of Student International Law Societies with Corresponding Secretariat at Duke University Law School. The Ohio State Society has sought this membership on its record of past activity and the interest in international law at the College of Law.

Under the advisorship of Professor Burke, the society has had an active year since its founding in the fall of 1965. Members of the society met with Ambassador Averell Harriman while he was in Columbus last spring. Also Professor Burke participated in a discussion of the Rhodesia issue on a panel at a meeting cosponsored by the International Students Association and the International Law Society. During the summer quarter in the Society invited Professor Richard Navarre of Mt. Senario College to conduct a seminar on "Semantics and the Law."

Last spring the society participated, for the first time, in the Jessup International Moot Tribunal Competition held by the Association of Student International Law Societies. The Ohio State team of Jim Bradner and Ed Steiner competed against law school teams from the University of Michigan and Western Reserve University in the regional competition but did not have the opportunity to meet the University of Wisconsin, the middle-states regional champion, or the University of Texas, the national champion.

This year, however, a team composed of two senior law students, Vince Cardi and Bill White, will argue in the second year of Jessup Competition for the Ohio State Society.

Vince Cardi has recently been elected president of the Ohio State International Law Society. Ed Steiner will serve as vice-president, while George Hatfield will be secretary-treasurer.

During a fall membership drive the Society intends to increase participation from those law students with an interest in international law.

Webster Chosen Ohio Bar Officer

Norton R. Webster, '52, Columbus, was elected vice president of the Ohio State Bar Association at the State Bar's Annual Meeting in Cleveland.

The new vice president is a former member of the State's Bar's Executive Committee and is currently chairman of the Legal Ethics and Professional Conduct Committee.

Webster is a former assistant secretary of the State Bar and a past chairman of the Public Relations Committee. He is a member of the Board of Governors of the Columbus Bar Association.

Speaking Out On The Coming Year

By Mike Finn

SBA President

With the beginning of each academic year, most law students return to the Law College with renewed vigor and an energetic disposition for the academic exercises soon to confront them.

Before we bury ourselves in the case books and hornbooks, let me suggest that there is another side to our legal education. The Student Bar Association and the many other clubs and organizations in this law school will be presenting programs for our benefit during the coming year. These programs will take many forms: guest lectures, luncheons, faculty-student coffee hours, and debates. Activities such as these are not designed to offer temporary relief from the day-to-day grind, but to complement the classroom lessons.

I urge you to go to the programs during the coming year. Attendance was embarrassingly poor at some of the guest lectures given by guests to the law school. This is discouraging to the speaker and to the organization that sponsors him. Decide now, while you have a fresh and energetic frame of mind, to attend many of these programs. The result will be beneficial to you personally and to the academic atmosphere of the entire Law School.

A Message From

The Dean

Ivan C. Rutledge

One of our best law students has said that the processes of communication are inherently ambiguous. I take it, however, that there is nothing really ambiguous about your return this fall to the academic environment. There may be a variety of motives, some negative, or at any rate merely relative, like the preference for a carrel over a rice paddy.

You have made your decision; I hope that in it there is an ingredient of pure gold. Matching the gold of the turning leaves, the desire of a student to enlarge the frontiers of his understanding redeems the baser values, such as surmounting hurdles toward a hoped-for lucrative practice, or squirrel-like putting away nuts of information against a long winter in the profession.

For those who are beginning the study of law. I congratulate you upon your act of faith in thus stepping into what is essentially unknown to you. If you would be so generous as to listen to my hope for you, it would be that like your fortunate predecessors now in their second and third years you will find something that "grabs you" in the method and materials of your study, so that they are not something merely to be endured and got by. (Passed)

The dead cold of winter is not a good symbol either for the methods and materials of our study or for your motives in staying out of the world's work to pursue formal studies a little longer. For our work, a better figure can be found in the rich colors in the shadows and lights and the varied winds of autumn.

If you came for a little gold, I am glad you came. Welcome!

History Of The College

Classes Started In 1891

Last Year's Class Spread Over The U.S.

First Of A Series

Throughout this seventy-fifth year the BARRISTER will present articles about the history of the College of Law, its graduates, and its effect on the world.

Below is a brief historical sketch drawn by the author of the Bulletin of the 1926-27 academic year. Note the style and pertinent factual changes; for example, classes in law are no longer held at Page Hall.

In June, 1885, a resolution was introduced before the Board of Trustees of the University, to provide for the establishing of a law school. The resolution was duly adopted at this time, but it was not until 1891 that the suggestion took shape and the organization of the school, known as the School of Law of the Ohio State University, became a reality. The School of Law was formally opened on October 1, 1891, with an initial enrollment of thirty-three students, the Hon. Marshall J. Williams, Judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio, being the first Dean, while Professor Horace L. Wilgus took his place as the first Secretary. The classes were held in the Franklin County Courthouse, there being no satisfactory building available on the Campus at that time, and by the end of the first year there appeared a total enrollment of sixty-three students.

Three years later, in September, 1894, the student body was moved to the Campus, the library and classrooms being first in Hayes Hall, where they remained for a few months, and later in Orton Hall. It was not until 1903 that the school acquired a separate building for its interests, Page Hall being acquired at that time, the same being named in honor of Henry F. Page, himself one of the foremost lawyers of that time, who gave his large estate to the University. Page Hall compares favorably with modern law school buildings, having sufficient space for its large library, with two excellently appointed student reading or study rooms. The building has proved sufficiently large to take care of the steady growth of the school. The original name of the school was changed in 1896 to the "College of Law of the Ohio State University," by which name it is designated today.

From the beginning it was one of the entrance requirements that, in order to be eligible for a law degree, the regular student must have previously taken two years of college work. This rule was the first of such rules in any of the schools of law in the United States, a very high standard at that time, and one which today is prescribed as necessary for the entry of a law school into the Association of American Law Schools, of which the College of Law of the Ohio State University is a member.

As early as 1908, the need was felt for a faculty giving all its time to the teaching of law. Prior to this time much of the instruction had been given by a faculty picked from the leading practitioners in Columbus. Consequently, in 1909, we find five full-time members on the faculty. At the present time, there are seven resident members, who give all of their time to the work of instruction.

The College Of Law reports the following placement locations for 88 of the 103 Class of 1966:

Law Associates out-of-state: California (5), Michigan (1), New Jersey (1), New York (4), and Washington (1).

Law Associates in-state: Akron (2), Ashtabula, Bellefontaine, Canton, Cincinnati (2), Cleveland (2), Columbus (13), Dayton (3), Eaton (1), Elyria (1), Ironton (1), Lancaster (1), Lima (1), Middleton (2), Mt. Vernon (1), Napoleon (1), Newark (1), Springfield (1), Toledo (4), Warren (1) and West Jefferson (1).

Judicial clerkships out-of-state, Florida and Alaska.

Judicial clerkships in-state (5).

Corporate general counsel out-of-state: Delaware, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

Corporate general counsel in-state, (3).

C.P.A. firms (3), federal government service (5), state government service (6), and Judge Advocate General Corps. commissions (4). The graduate going the farthest from O.S.U. is William A. Green, who is in Fairbanks, Alaska as clerk to two judges of the Superior Court, fourth Judicial District, Master for the court and Court Trustee.

Placement of the top 10% of the class were as follows: James W. Bowers, Sullivan and Cromwell, New York; John A. Humbach, Breen, Abbot, & Moyan, New York; Michael D. Saad, Clerk to Chief Justice, Supreme Court of Ohio; Rex W. Throckmorton, Squire, Sanders, & Dempsey, Cleveland; Lawrence R. Ellman, Clerk, U. S. District Court Judge, Toledo, Zel Canter, Orrick, Pahlquest, Herrington & Sutcliffe, San Francisco; John P. Winguard Clerk, Judge Supreme Court of Ohio; Martin A. Coyle, Cravath, Swaine & Morre, New York; John H. Bain, Mayer, Fingley, & Hura, Columbus; and Paul A. Bernardina, Wise, Roetzel, Kelly, Maxon, & Andress, Akron.

During 1965-1966, 54 interviews were scheduled, including approximately 450 individual student interviews, for on campus interviewers, and approximately 250 letters of employment opportunities were received and processed.

Dean Wharton, director of placement, states that the college anticipates a greater number of interviewers, out-of-state, as well as in-state, will be on campus to talk with prospective graduates during the academic year. The College will graduate 125 students, seventeen of which will receive degrees in December, 1966.

'54 Grad Appointed

Richey Named Assistant Director

Willard R. Richey, '54, an attorney in Mansfield for the past 10 years, has been named as assistant director of the Ohio State Legal Services Association. He will assist Robert A. Blattner recently named as director, in setting up the offices and program of the non-profit corporation. Richey began his new duties June 20.

Prior to entering private practice in 1956 he worked in the State Bureau of Workmen's Compensation.

Richey is a past secretary of the Richland County Bar Association and is also a member of the Atomic Energy Committee of the State Bar and a member of the American Bar Association.

The OSLSA was established in March to formulate a program of assistance to local Bar associations and to attorneys engaged in providing legal assistance to the poor. The Office of Economic Opportunity recently awarded the OSLSA $59,500 for its first year of operation.

Ohio Bar Results, OSU Places High

According to the May 6, 1966 issue of the Ohio Bar the Supreme Court of Ohio has released the following list of law schools and how their students fared in the March, 1966, bar examination. The list is separated into two parts showing the candidates from the particular schools the number taking the examination for the first, second or third time, and those who passed and failed in the examinations.

Figures and results of the July, 1966 Ohio State Bar examination are not presently available.

and Kentucky were represented, past-president Rob Briggs of the O.S.U. College of Law was selected as one of the two most outstanding student bar association presidents in the Sixth Circuit. The other student bar association president selected was from the University of Detroit College of Law.

It was also in Montreal that the Ohio State Student Bar Association began efforts to organize an international "home and home" moot court competition between three Canadian law schools, McGill, Osgoode Hall, and Queens, and three American law schools, Ohio State, Michigan, and Western Reserve. In pursuit of obtaining such a competition, Jim Bradner of Ohio State spent part of one afternoon with the McGill law faculty discussing the competition. The response at McGill was weak due to the vacation period in progress but the competition still remains in the offering.

The business of Montreal did include pleasurable moments. Wednesday evening of the week-long Meeting marked the point when A.L.S.A. delegates and their wives were invited to attend the Annual American Bar Association's President's Reception and Dance.

One afternoon the Ohio State A.L.S.A. delegation attended the Ohio State Alumni Luncheon held for all Alumni and their families attending the American Bar Association Annual Meeting. Dean Rutledge described briefly the growth and present status of the College of Law. Before the Alumni and their families returned to the A.B.A. activities, Isadore Topper of the Alumni Association, Associate Dean Kuhfeld of the College Office, and Mike Finn of the Student Bar Association presented several remarks concerning the College of Law and their respective duties.

In the foreground, Mr. Hylas Hilliard '48, and his son, Ricky. In the background are Diana Newman and Denny Newman meeting Mike Finn, Student Bar Association President, and Dean Rutledge.

Both the A.L.S.A. Meeting and the American Bar Association Meeting proved to be complete successes despite the air strike in progress at that time. It will be during this academic year that much of the information obtained and projects initiated at the 1966 A.L.S.A. annual meeting in Montreal, Canada, will be used by the O.S.U. Student Bar Association to benefit the student body at the College of Law.

Harrington Named To Bar Committee

William G. Harrington, '58, has been named to the technical committee of experts for the Ohio State Bar Association. Also named were Prof. Lawrence Herman, and Rep. John C. McDonald, J. D. '61. Danny D. Johnson, '49, is a member of the legislative committee, and also Thomas M. Herbert, '57 and Barry Levey, '54.

Women's Corner

Professor Soia Mentschikoff, the first female professor at two of the nation's top law schools (Harvard and Chicago) and former member of a Wall Street law firm, gave the following advice to women who think they would like to enter the legal profession in the Nov. 3, 1965 Chicago Daily News:

"Be sure you can do a good job in law school. There's no point in bouncing along at the bottom of the class. Unless you make an excellent record in law school your opportunities will be severely limited. The man at the bottom of the class may still get a job. The girl won't. Go to the best law school you can get into. There's less prejudice against a woman if she comes from one of the elite law schools. Don't plan to enter law school as a lark, to be near men. It's not possible. We have 1,300 applications a year at Chicago and take fewer than 150 students."

New Faces At The College

Caldwell, Kellman, Sklar Join Faculty

Mr. Maurice Kellman, Associate Professor of Law, discusses his jury seminar. On the wall, out of view of the camera, are cartoons done by Mr. Kellman who enjoys amateur cartooning.

G. Borah from 1955 to 1958. She is also admitted to practice before the U.S. Court of Appeals, Fifth Circuit, and the U.S. Supreme Court.

The book she edited with L.E. Allen, Communication Sciences and Law appeared in 1965.

Mr. Kellman Comes From Wayne State

Maurice Kellman joins the faculty this year after having taught for six years at Wayne State University, Michigan, leaving there as an Associate Professor, the same rank he will hold here.

Mr. Sklar, Assistant Professor of Law, discusses his European tour with Dean Rutledge shortly after his return.

Mr. Kellman was born in 1935 in Detroit, received his A.B. in 1956 from Wayne State University. He got a J.D. degree from Wayne State in 1959, and an L.L.M. from Harvard. While at Wayne State he was editor-in-chief of the Law Review, and at Harvard he was a Ford Fellow in 1962 and 1963.

His subjects include Research and writing, Administrative Law, Agency, Equity, Legal Process and Constitutional Law. The latter he will teach Winter Quarter here.

He will also be teaching a seminar on jury trial this Fall. He plans to teach the course like a regular class, but hopes it can be more intimate. Law literature will be as important as case law, and the course will rely heavily on law journal articles.

He is a member of the Michigan State Bar Assn. and is a panel member with the American Arbitration Assn.

Sklar Teaches Criminal Law For Freshmen

Ronald Bernard Sklar joins the faculty as an Assistant Professor.

He holds an undergraduate degree from New York University, an L.L.B. from Brooklyn Law School, an L.L.M. from Northwestern University where he was a Ford Fellow, and an L.L.M. from Yale.

Criminal law is Mr. Sklar's primary field of interest. Among other courses he will teach criminal law and a seminar in international criminal law. During his three years of teaching at Brooklyn Law School he taught legal research, a seminar in criminal law problems, insurance, equity, conflict of laws, probation and parole, and criminal law.

Mr. Sklar is admitted to the New York State Bar Association and has had a limited practice in criminal law.

He and his wife Adrienne recently returned from a pleasure vacation in Europe.

Faculty Spends Active Summer

Profs Lecture And Publish

Dean Ivan C. Rutledge was a visiting professor of law at the University of North Carolina in June and July of this summer. He taught Constitutional Law.

Also this summer Dean Rutledge delivered speeches before the Municipal Judges' Association and the Richland County Bar Association.

Professor Robert J. Lynn announced that his book, The Modern Rule Against Perpetuities has been published by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. In the last few months he has also written an article appearing in Vol. 13 of the UCLA Law Review entitled "Perpetuities: The Duration of Charitable Trusts and Foundations" and a review of the book Ownership and The Development of Land by Krasnowiecki appearing in Vol. 18 of the Journal of Legal Education.

Professor Lynn is also a member of the Special Committee on Rules Against Perpetuities of the American Bar Association.

* * *

Professor Lawrence Herman was elected vice-president of the Ohio Civil Liberties Union in July. He is also a member of the Ohio Criminal Law Revision Commission.

Professor Herman has delivered speeches before the Columbus chapter of the AAUW, (American Assn. of University Women) the Ninth District Bar Association, the Ohio Wesleyan University Pre-Law Club, and the OSU Pre-Law Club in the last six months.

His recent writings include a book review of Kaplan & Waltz's The Trial of Jack Ruby which appears in the June 1966 issue of the Columbia Law Review and a memorandum on selected aspects of "American Law Institute's Model code of Pre-Arraignment Procedures, Tentative Draft Number 1" for AAUW's national study on Law and Law Enforcement.

* * *

Assistant Dean Joanne Wharton participated in an Ohio Legal Center Institute conference on July 8 by appearing on a panel with John O. Harper of the firm of Martin Browne, Hull & Harper of Springfield. Mr. Harper discussed the Associate, his training, recruiting and keeping while Dean Wharton spoke on law school placement — its services to the bar and to the student.

* * *

Professor Howard Fink co-authored with Professor James William Moore of the Yale Law School the current editions of Volume 7A of Moore's Federal Practice and Moore's Federal Rules Pamphlet.

Active Groups

Law Fraternity Den

By Paul Coleman

Swan-Inn of the Phi Delta Phi Legal Fraternity began to lay plans for the social program for the coming year, according to Boyd Ferris, president of the group. Ferris stated that questionnaires relating to proposed social events were mailed out to all members towards the close of the summer vacation, and that evaluation of the returned questionnaires will enable the fraternity to plan a social program in accord with the wishes of the majority of its membership.

Phi Delta Phi, which, with its membership of over 50 men is the largest fraternity, at Ohio State, has traditionally placed emphasis on a sound social program aimed at enabling its membership to occasionally relax from the pace of legal studies.

Planned for this year are an autumn quarter hayride, the traditional winter formal, and a Spring quarter picnic, as well as several parties. The fraternity will also be seated as a block at the home football games this year as a part of the social program.

Ferris also noted that the fraternity will compete in the Intramural Football League Professional Division this year. For the past two years, P.D.P. has won the championship of the Professional Division.

PHI ALPHA DELTA

Steve Hebenstreit, Justice of Ohio State's McKinley Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity, was recently a delegate to the Fraternity's 36th biennial convention at Kansas City. The convention of the largest law fraternity began August 30 at the convention headquarters, the Hotel Muhlebach.

The keynote address was given by the Honorable Charles E. Whittaker, who served on the United States Supreme Court from 1957 to 1962.

Workshops were held to discuss the professional programs and services offered by Phi Alpha Delta Chapters to supplement the law students' formal legal education.

At the Truman Memorial Library, delegates presented an award to President Harry S Truman, Phi Alpha Delta brother.

Elected to the office of Supreme Justice was Robert E. Redding, a 1940 graduate of Ohio State.

The Honorable Tom C. Clark of the United States Supreme Court, long active in Phi Alpha Delta affairs, was elected to the position of Supreme Vice Justice. Justice Clark, who was unable to leave Washington, addressed the convention by telephone.

Elected Associate Tribune was Kenneth C. Segal, a 1958 graduate of Ohio State University and a graduate of Chase College of Law in Cincinnati. Mr. Segal is also Justice of the Fraternity's Ohio-Michigan District.

Washington D.C. was announced as the site of the 1968 convention.

Mr. Isadore Topper '27, present Chairman of the National Council and past-President of the College of Law Alumni Association, listens with Mike Finn, S.B.A. President, while Dean Rutledge addresses the Alumni assembled at the Montreal Luncheon.
